BECOMING THURGOOD
AMERICA'S SOCIAL ARCHITECT

Alexis Aggrey (Director/Producer) is a director, producer and founder of The Aggrey Company, a boutique production house based in Washington, DC. With over 20 years of experience across public television, museums, and live events, she specializes in vérité documentaries and community-centered storytelling that elevate underrepresented voices. Her award-winning work includes the Emmy® Award-winning Water's Edge: Black Watermen of the Chesapeake and the Peabody Award-winning 180 Days series, which premiered nationally on PBS. Aggrey has produced content for PBS, Paramount+, ESPN+, Amazon Originals and for many prominent museums, blending deep archival research with powerful, character-driven narratives. Through The Aggrey Company, she leads a collaborative team dedicated to crafting bold, thoughtful, and socially impactful media.
